The solemn lorest filts its head
The Almighty to proclaim.
The brooklet, on its crystal urn,
Doth leap to grave his name;
How swells the deep and vengeful sea,
Along its billowy track;
The red Vesuvius opes his mouth
Tonurl the falsehood back!

The palm tree, with its princely crest,

The cocoa's leafy shade,
The bread fruit bending to its Lord,
In you far island glade,
The winged seeds, that borne by winds,
The roving sparrows feed,
The melon, on the desert sands,
Confute the scorner's creed.

"No God!" with indignation high, The fervent sun is stirred,
And the pale moce paler still
At such an impious word;
And from their burning throne the stars
Look down with angry eye.
That thus a worm of dust could mock
Eternal Majesty.

BY THE BARD OF MARRIE HALL: In Batimore, famed for ladies fair, Lived a beautiful girl with flaxen hair, And bonny blue eyes with liquid light, And roscate lips, a glorious sight.

The youngsters fell in love by dozens, Friends and acquaintances, strangers and cousins; But she a crotchet had got in her head, And said she determined never to wed

Until she loved a handsome youth Who would grant all her requests i The pledge he had taken for her sake. The young men stood aghast with fear ;

Some whacked their boots, some pulled their hair; Some said 'twas religion, some said 'twas money; But it took them aback and they felt quite funcy; Among them there was a fine young man; Says he, "I love her as well as I can, Now I'll make her the promise, both open and free, And agree to stand by it whatever it be."

The fair one stepped up to his side, And said, "Should I now be your bride, You must promise here before us all, To buy your clothes at MARBLE HALL.

No other can suit a husband of mine, The coats are so handsome, the pants divine." Says Johnny, a laughing, "You dear little elf. If you like them so well, get a pair for yourself."
